

Abstract

The invention includes a method, communication network and device for communicating data between a fiber optic data network and an electric power system. The inventive method includes communicating a first data signal on the fiber optic data network, converting the first data signal from the fiber optic data network to a second data signal, and transmitting the second data signal on the electric power system.

[illegible]